

BANDITS HOLD UP
30 IN A CRAP GAME
Loot Consists of $5,000, 10
Diamond Rings, 7 Watches and 14 Pistols.

VICTIMS FACE WALL
Three Threaten With Guns
While Fourth Makes the Collection.

ESCAPE WITH WARNING
Detectives Obtain Good Description of Robbers—18
Weapons; No Shooting.

Thirty men were engaged in a game of crap at 238 William street, Sunday morning, when four masked bandits pushed their way into the room and directed all the occupants to hold up their hands, at the same time displaying pistols.

After the victims were lined up with their faces against the wall three of the bandits kept them "covered," while the fourth proceeded to take up a collection. He worked rapidly, throwing the loot in a heap on the center of the floor. The thirty players yielded up $5,000, ten diamond rings, seven watches and fourteen pistols.

The departure of the bandits was as unceremonious as their advent. The usual warning not to follow was given and the four ran through the still open door, dashed down the stairs and disappeared. A few seconds later several of the victims ran to the windows and shouted for the police, but by the time a policeman arrived the bandits had disappeared. Detectives hurried over from the Oak street station and listened to the tale of the victims. Fairly good descriptions of the bandits were given. The players who lost their pistols are said to have permits. How a wholesale shooting was avoided remains a mystery to the police.

TWO SERVANTS LEAVE;
ALSO $1,500 IN GEMS

Flatbush Woman Has Both Servitors Arrested.

Mrs. Mary Bryan of 1444 East Second street, Flatbush, who lost two servants and $1,500 worth of jewelry on Saturday, had two arrests to her credit yesterday and part of her jewelry back. On her return home Saturday morning with birthday presents for her oldest son, John, Jr., Mrs. Bryan found that Anna Thompson, 26 years old, her maid, and her handy man, whom she had supposed to be Anna's husband, had left, and her jewelry was missing. Yesterday morning she received a letter from the maid who had returned in person. She gave back the jewelry. The maid declared that the handy man had taken the jewelry. Anna brought only a third of the jewels stolen, so Mrs. Bryan had her arrested.

Later in the day she found the handy man in a hardware store, apparently waiting for Anna to return. She sprang on him and gave him a severe beating and then had him arrested. At the Parkville police station he said he was Wilfred Hartley, a dentist of Philadelphia.

Both prisoners will be arraigned in the Flatbush police court to-day.

POLICE AND FIRE PAY BILLS UP TO-MORROW

Hearing Before Mayor on Legislative Measure.

The bill passed by the Legislature raising the salaries of first grade New York policemen and firemen from $2,250 to $2,500 a year, beginning January 1 next, will be one of the measures on which there will be a public hearing before Mayor Hylan to-morrow.

The Mayor placed the $2,500 salary in the budget a year ago, but it was omitted because of difficulty in meeting the teachers' estimate. The present measure is favored by Robert E. Newell, State art director and Edward P. Dwyer, who represent large real estate associations. Mayor Hylan yesterday received a letter from John O. Gempier, who represents the Mayor's district in the Assembly. He said he believed the vote in the Legislature reflected the sentiments of the whole people. In his own district he had found "an overwhelming sentiment in favor of paying to our policemen and firemen salaries in keeping with what the people expect of them in the line of duty and with the risks they assume." He asked the Mayor to "do the right thing" in approving the bill.

FEARS GRANDMA MAY TEACH SON TO SMOKE

So Mrs. Isabel Hawkins Asks Custody of Child.

Mrs. Isabel G. Hawkins declared in papers before Supreme Court Justice Squiers in Brooklyn yesterday that she did not want her 2-year-old son, James Weir Hawkins, Jr., influenced by the action of his paternal grandmother in smoking cigarettes. Mrs. Hawkins obtained an order directing her husband, James W. Hawkins, Flatbush florist, to show cause why custody of the boy should not be given to her.

The application will be argued in court some time this week.

WOMEN FINED $3 EACH FOR HAVING FIST FIGHT

One Says Other Owed Her Money—Battle on Sunday.

It costs $3 for a woman to fight another woman on the streets of New York. This is about the same as the current rate of fine prevailing in male scrapes.

The fines were levied yesterday by Magistrate Thomas J. Nolan in Yorkville Police Court on Mrs. Rose Altieri, 25 years old, who is said to be an opera singer, and Mrs. Mary Mitchell, 46 years old, of 211 East Thirty-fourth street. The women staged a fist fight, with coats off, in front of Tammany Hall Sunday afternoon, while a crowd of about three hundred men, mostly men, watched without venturing to interfere. A minister with a police whistle finally stopped the fight, for he summoned Patrolman Cornelius Walters.

MRS. MACKAYE, SUFFRAGIST, VANISHES MYSTERIOUSLY

Former Jessie Stubbs, Leader Years Ago of Votes for Women Hike to Albany, Eludes Husband in Grand Central Terminal and Suicide Is Feared.

From Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon went out a general alarm for Mrs. Jessie H. S. Mackaye, writer and speaker for woman suffrage in the days before the suffrage amendment was passed and wife of Benton Mackaye, an examiner in the Government Forestry Service at Washington. Mrs. Mackaye disappeared yesterday afternoon after leaving her home at 143 West Twelfth street, in company with her husband. With a threat of suicide on her lips, she ran away from him in the Grand Central Terminal and was lost quickly in the crowds there.

For several months Mrs. Mackaye had been in poor health. At times her condition caused fits of despondency and she mentioned suicide as a solution. She particularly dwelt on the possibilities of ending her life by drowning. With that in mind Mr. Mackaye lost no time in communicating with the police and asking that a special watch be kept for her along the city waterfront.

No sign of Mrs. Mackaye had been found up to midnight. Once late in the afternoon, the police believed they had found her body. The body of a woman was found in the East River, off Astoria shore, but while the general description compared with that supplied for Mrs. Mackaye, it was reported that some of the details did not tally.

Mrs. Mackaye, widely known among suffragists by her maiden name—Jessie Stubbs—led the suffrage hike to Albany during the Sulzer regime and presented to the then Governor the petition that the State allow women to vote. She had planned to renew them when she recovered, and yesterday when she disappeared she and Mr. Mackaye were on the way to a country resort, where it was expected she would regain her health.

Mrs. Mackaye was described as 45 years old, five feet five inches in height and 135 pounds in weight. Other details included iron gray hair, spectacles, green hat, gray skirt, dark brown fur lined coat, tan shoes, tan spats and tan stockings.

She continued her activity in women's political circles until she became ill. She had planned to renew them when she recovered, and yesterday when she disappeared she and Mr. Mackaye were on the way to a country resort, where it was expected she would regain her health.

United States Senator Calder, whose demand resulted in an order from Attorney-General Daugherty directing a thorough investigation into the case of former Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, charged in a Federal warrant with the murder of Major A. P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in October, 1918, is convinced the former Captain is innocent.

"I won't say I think Capt. Rosenbluth is innocent—I know he is innocent," Senator Calder said yesterday, and added that he did not believe the case was similar to the famous Dreyfus case, or that it was the result of anti-Semitic propaganda. "I think," he said, "it is simply a case where the Government agents took hold of a hot poker and now don't know how to let go."

Developments in the case yesterday included a challenge to the Government by Jonah J. Goldstein, Rosenbluth's attorney, to produce former Sergeant Roland P. Pothier, who the Government agents have said was ordered by Capt. Rosenbluth to shoot Major Cronkhite, and let the Captain meet his accuser face to face.

"I will not ask to be present to protect my client in any way. All I ask would be to have a good stenographer take the conversation, or let some disinterested persons, reporters if you like, be present. Then we would find out the truth of the matter."

Mr. Goldstein exhibited a telegram from former Sergeant Frank B. Turner, now connected with the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Cronkhite when he was shot. The telegram said that he had not been interviewed by Government agents concerning the Cronkhite shooting.

Capt. Rosenbluth's attorney also attaches significance to the alleged failure of the Government agents to include among the papers in the case a report of their examination of Capt. Eugene Caffey, who also was present at the time of the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

ROSENBLUTH ASKS TO FACE ACCUSER

Counsel Dares U. S. Agents to Produce Pothier in Cronkhite Case.

CALDER ON WARPATH
Senator Declares His Belief
in Innocence of Former Army Officer.

FEDERAL ACTION SCORED
Charge Made Part of Records Is Withheld—Full Investigation Demanded.

United States Senator Calder, whose demand resulted in an order from Attorney-General Daugherty directing a thorough investigation into the case of former Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, charged in a Federal warrant with the murder of Major A. P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in October, 1918, is convinced the former Captain is innocent.

"I won't say I think Capt. Rosenbluth is innocent—I know he is innocent," Senator Calder said yesterday, and added that he did not believe the case was similar to the famous Dreyfus case, or that it was the result of anti-Semitic propaganda. "I think," he said, "it is simply a case where the Government agents took hold of a hot poker and now don't know how to let go."

Developments in the case yesterday included a challenge to the Government by Jonah J. Goldstein, Rosenbluth's attorney, to produce former Sergeant Roland P. Pothier, who the Government agents have said was ordered by Capt. Rosenbluth to shoot Major Cronkhite, and let the Captain meet his accuser face to face.

"I will not ask to be present to protect my client in any way. All I ask would be to have a good stenographer take the conversation, or let some disinterested persons, reporters if you like, be present. Then we would find out the truth of the matter."

Mr. Goldstein exhibited a telegram from former Sergeant Frank B. Turner, now connected with the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Cronkhite when he was shot. The telegram said that he had not been interviewed by Government agents concerning the Cronkhite shooting.

Capt. Rosenbluth's attorney also attaches significance to the alleged failure of the Government agents to include among the papers in the case a report of their examination of Capt. Eugene Caffey, who also was present at the time of the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Among the names Mr. Goldstein says he has supplied to the Government are those of Capt. Seaburg of Peoria, Ill., the medical officer who pronounced Major Cronkhite dead; Major Henry Tucker of Philadelphia, principal medical officer of Rosenbluth's company, and Capt. Charles Seaburg, who was stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. Capt. Caffey is a cousin of the United States Attorney for Southern New York and was a classmate of Major Cronkhite at West Point. According to Capt. Rosenbluth, Capt. Caffey was questioned by Government agents, and he told them Rosenbluth could not be guilty of any part in the crime. This report, Mr. Goldstein charges, was deliberately withheld from the file of the case. He also charges that Government agents at first denied they had examined Capt. Caffey.

"If they did not examine Capt. Caffey," said Mr. Goldstein, "they were guilty of negligence. If they did examine him and withheld his report they are guilty of malice or worse."

Broadway at Ninth Street,
New York
Business Hours—
9 to 5.
Telephone
Stuyvesant 4700

An Old Sportsman
Says this Old Thing in Different Words

"We won't say four till we have them in the bag."
Nothing is more common with young fellows than to "count our chickens afore they're hatched."

It is good for all of us to have imaginations and to hope for the best, but from sources reliable this will assure you that if you are going to Florida by automobile you will do better to go by train or boat, unless you do not mind very bad turnpikes for part of the way. Sometimes good advice, like tried and proved merchandise, is cheap at any price.

[Signed]
John Wanamaker
April 19, 1921.

Diana Salon Shows
Summer Frocks
for Miss 14 to 20

Individual frocks, fashioned of a variety of delightful materials in exquisite coloring.

$15 to $79.50
—ginghams
—dotted swiss
—organdies and linen.
Second Floor, Old Building.

"The only shoes
I ever had

That didn't hurt"
—said a man who wore
ANATOMIK Shoes

They are the result of many years of study of the anatomy of the foot. They offer a straight axis from heel to toe, broad shank, broad heel brought under the body weight—thus following nature in providing a broad base to assure perfect body balance.

Once worn, they are always worn by people with foot-troubles and people with well feet who want to keep them well.

For men, women and children

All sizes and a variety of styles in high shoes and oxfords.

$5 to $17 a pair; according to size and kind.

Women's and Girls'—
First Floor, Old Building.
Men's and Boys'—
Burlington Arcade Floor,
New Building.

Watch your step:

But you can't unless you have good eyes! We grind, mount and fit your lenses in our own optical shop, either by your oculist's prescription or upon examination by our own optometrists.

Our 1-piece bifocal lenses have the appearance of single-vision glasses, but serve equally far and near sight.

To save time make appointment for the examination. 1-piece bifocal lenses $14 pr. Mountings $1.50 up.

Optical Section,
First Floor, Old Building.

The Musician
Immortalized

The story of the realization of a dream in which the artist's interpretation of great music is preserved for posterity.

Motion pictures showing the following great artists, actually playing, will be shown at 2:30 today in the Auditorium:

RACHMANINOFF
GODOWSKY
ORNSTEIN
ZIMBALIST
Artur Bodanzky, conducting the National Symphony Orchestra.

Concert
Hans Barth, pianist.
Lois Bennett, soprano.
Eileen Mayo, dancer.
And the CHICKERING-AMICO REPRODUCING PIANO.
Admission complimentary.
First Gallery, New Building.

The John Wanamaker Store
Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

E L Departamento Latino-Americano de la Casa de John Wanamaker presenta un atento saludo a los

Miembros de la Mision Especial de Venezuela
y lo estimaria un gran honor si durante su visita en Nueva York consideraran que nuestro cuerpo de interpretes estan incondicionalmente a sus ordenes.

El Departamento Latino-Americano se encuentra en el Primer Piso de nuestro Edificio Antiguo—Esquina de Broadway y la Calle Nueve.

Early American
Maple Beds
At Very Low Prices

AU QUATRIEME.
This week there will be a series of interesting events happening in the Little House of American antiques. Pieces which we will be able to offer during the week at very small prices have now arrived.

We are showing today a collection of fine old maple beds at remarkably low prices.

For instance, There is an old folding bed of maple, the unusual old type made with six legs arranged so that it may be folded back against the wall; $82.50.

A beautiful maple low-post bed with turned acorn posts; $75.

A bed with three-quarter height posts, with beautifully turned tops; $75.